POLITICAL NOTES

A H Stephens advises his friends in Georgia to repudiate Greeley and put forth new candidates for electors.

The Democratic papers are speaking of the Greeley undercurrent. The term is felicitous. Horace is being sucked in.

Cassius M Clay says We are living under a despotism. Reason Gen Grant ordered him back from St Petersburg, where he was making an ass of himself and disgracing the country.

There was no delegate from Oregon in the crowd that visited Greeley and notified him of his nomination at Baltimore. Every other State was represented. Oregon Democracy slunked away.

Greeley's nomination is the opportunity of the Tammany thieves. And they are making the most of it. They all shout for him and they will all vote for him—early and often. His election will bring them again to the surface, and restore them to power.

Says the Staats Zeitung the great German Democratic paper of New York. The opposition under the leadership of Greeley offers nothing that is calculated to call out the Republican strength feeling of justice and morality of the people. That opposition bears too much the stamp of false pretense and thus the people turn away from the swindle with disgust.

The New York Times thus defines the meaning of the phrase 'Liberal Reform' as used by the Tammany Republican Democratic Cincinnati Baltimore Free-Trade Protection party of that city. A liberal putting of the Fenton Republicans and the Tammany Ring Democrats into office and a rigid reform of true Republicans and War Democrats out of office."

A New York paper says. The tone of the Tribune this year in regard to the Orange procession is vastly different from that of last year. Then it was ferocious against the Irish Catholics, and was crowded with threats and abuse. Now, however, when there are votes to be gained, and an important interest to be conciliated, the Tribune's rhetoric is set to a new measure.

The Williams, as well as the Defiance county Democrats, Ohio, "bolted' the Greeley Convention at Cleveland. Their local paper the Bryan Democrat, says. There are in Williams county, when all told, about two thousand Democratic voters. Of that number not one in one hundred favors the nomination of Greeley by the Baltimore Convention. Of those who do favor his nomination not one in ten are in the habit of going to the polls."

A Southern paper which hoists the Cincinnati ticket prints the following for its own platform. White supremacy and repudiation. The Constitution of 1860 and the rights of States! This is a white man's Government, made by white men, for white men and their posterity forever! Down with the Fifteenth Amendment! Total repudiation of the monstrous Yankee war debt!—that accursed unconstitutional burden! accumulated by an unconstitutional mob styling itself a Congress, in the prosecution of an unconstitutional crusade, for the accomplishment of an unconstitutional and horrid purpose.

Suggestions and Answers

We take the following from the Albany N Y Journal

Every one who chooses to live by pugilism or gambling or harlotry with nearly every keeper of a tippling house is politically a Democrat.—Horace Greeley

As no stream can rise higher than its source so no man elected to office can be better than his constituents.

If there were not a newspaper nor common school in the country the Democratic party would be far stronger than it is.—Horace Greeley

As Mr Greeley now desires to be elected to the Presidency by the Democratic party he is doubtless sorry that its strength has been impaired by newspapers and common schools.

A purely selfish interest attaches the lewd ruffianly criminal and dangerous classes to the Democratic party.—Horace Greeley

As Horace Greeley has recently become attached to the Democratic party a great many are anxious to know whether he was impelled thereto by a purely selfish interest and if so to which of these dangerous classes he belongs.

We thereupon ask our contemporary the State [illegible] whether the pugilist blacklegs thieves brothel keepers of dens of prostitution etc were [illegible] almost unanimously Democratic.—Horace Greeley

[illegible] our contemporary [illegible] Democratic paper should answer it. Mr Greeley is doubtless anxious to know whether he can surely count upon the votes of this large and influential class of his fellow citizens.

Jubilee Finances A Deficit of $150 000

From the Boston Post July 8th

The finishing up of accounts by the Jubilee Committee reveals the unwelcome fact that there is a deficit of $150 000 which will have to be made up from the Guarantee Fund unless some method of swelling the receipts is hit upon. The building and fixtures still remain but even these will hardly make up the loss. Mr Gilmore who has worked night and day for many months in bringing his great conception into shape finds no return for his exhaustive labors and the proceeds of his benefit were generously donated by him to the Association. The Executive Committee would doubtless find if they chose to experiment that the sentiment of the business community of Boston is heartily favorable to any scheme which might be devised for making up the loss which Mr Gilmore has sustained in his enterprise and the public spirited citizens of Boston only await the suggestion to do their part toward making Mr Gilmore a handsome testimonial as he certainly deserves to receive.

I cannot bear to leave my husband alone in this place of danger.

Wedding Gifts

From Harper's Bazar

To such a pass has this pernicious practice come at last that what was once would have been thought to set decency at defiance is its commonest feature. We have known of cases where people of whose intention in the matter there was doubt have had what they were expected to give distinctly intimated to them: others where when the requisite display was not to be had a sister's jewels and silver were called into temporary use on the side tables of the bride-chamber and we have heard of instances which our own experience has not yet verified though we are prepared for anything in the line where jewelers have sent up salvers and baskets and spoons and ladles for inspection with a view to purchase and which have been quietly returned after the wedding was over. Certainly a thing that is capable of such abuses should be regulated by some means or other even if regulation requires abolition. There is no just or propriety that gives two young people the right to expect that their friends and acquaintances will furnish their house for them with the luxurious belongings which they cannot themselves provide: the crystal and silver to brighten their table, the pictures for their walls, the bronze and marble and china, the book racks and portfolios and prints which are to beautify their rooms and give them the air of elegance that only such costly trifles can. These things eventually take shape in their minds. If these young people cannot afford such affairs for themselves let them go without them or remain single. Cheap as they are they cost too much and it cannot be in any right minded condition of things that such splendid spoils given with much the same feeling as a bill is paid should be preferred to the trivial tribute that costs little but love.

The Daily Oregonian.

Another Explanation.

A few [illegible] Democratic organ, the New York [illegible] have made up its mind [illegible] the [illegible] of the defeat of its party [illegible] it is to be supposed that it was [illegible]. A few days ago it [illegible] long editorial designation [illegible] which the State was carried by [illegible] the most important [illegible] thousand men from California by Ben Holladay. Not satisfied with this, however, the Tribune searches further. The issue of that paper which came by yesterday's mail quotes from an editorial that appeared in the Albany (Oregon) Democrat just before the election, in which the Democracy of this State were urged to make a special effort on the ground that if Oregon were lost it would be an additional argument for the nomination of Greeley at Baltimore, a result which no Oregon Democrat wanted. Let us quote just what the Democrat said:

> If we carry the State next Monday, it will stimulate that Convention to make a square-toed Democratic fight. If we lose Oregon—as California, New Hampshire, and Connecticut were lost at the last elections in these States—the National Democratic Convention will see no hope for our cause, save in a coalition with the Independent Republicans. Hence we believe, the result of our State election next Monday will have much to do in determining our status as a party in the coming national contest. A vote for Burnett is a vote for a straight Democratic Presidential ticket and a sound Democratic platform.

Thus, says the Tribune, sharply lecturing the Democrat, were the "votes of Liberals repelled from the ticket." And this, observes that paper in conclusion, "was the way Oregon was made to go Republican. She had too many Democratic leaders who had not realized that slavery was abolished." Now let the Albany Democrat, reproved and abashed, hide its diminished head! The great organ of its party administers discipline. Mr. Greeley is the recognized head of the Democratic party, and his Tribune chastises his followers in approved fashion. It has held the eminent position of "chief organ" but a few weeks; yet it plies the lash with the skill of an accomplished whipper-in, and the small fry have to stand it. The Democrat of course supports Greeley, and accepts the censorship of his Tribune.

So all the stories of "Radical frauds" in our election are dropped. Democrats are to be blamed themselves for the defeat, simply because they believed in sticking to their principles and were reluctant to surrender to the disinterested sage of Chappaqua! This seems to be the final opinion of the Tribune.

How Our People are Employed.

The multifarious details of the census of 1870 are now appearing in classified forms. We may therefore begin to realize their value and interest. Of all the tabular exhibits from the census office none has been made that affords so much material for thought as those just completed, showing the occupations of the people of the United States.

From these it appears, first, that nearly one-third of our people are producers—as there are 12,505,923 of those who pursue "gainful occupations." Of these about half, or 5,922,471 were engaged in agriculture; 2,707,421 in manufactures; 1,191,238 in trade and transportation and 2,684,793 in professions, as day laborers, or in domestic service.

The difference between the principal foreign elements of our population is shown strikingly by the census returns. Thus, while of the Germans, 224,531 were engaged in agriculture and 308,231 in manufactures and trade, but 42,866 are returned as domestic servants. On the other hand, of the Irish, while 138,425 are engaged in agriculture, 264,628 in manufactures, and 119,071 in transportation, 145,556 are returned as domestic servants, more than three times as many as belong to this class among the Germans.

A still larger proportion of the servant class is found among the natives of British North America who live in the United States. Of these adopted citizens 42,288 were engaged in agriculture, 76,457 in manufactures, 16,565 in trade and transportation, and 48,003, in "personal and professional" services—a large proportion of these being servant.

The enormous dimensions of our railway system are shown by the fact that there were 154,027 railroad employes. This is a prodigious force in our industrial economy, and is daily increasing in numbers and power.

Return of Senator Corbett.

This gentleman, on his arrival yesterday, was met with hearty greetings by his old friends. His record as a Senator has been good, and the people of the State testify their appreciation of it by welcoming him on his appearance among them. His record as a Republican, though not noisy, has been unwavering, and he has at all times had the confidence of the Republicans of Oregon. He will remain in the State during the summer and fall, and perhaps till after the Presidential election. This evening a demonstration in honor of his arrival at home will take place, further notice of which is given elsewhere in the OREGONIAN.

We have to-day an official account of the plot of the rebels to burn our cities in 1864. In view of the fact that nearly all who were agents in this enterprise are now active politicians and at work for the "Greeley-Tammany-Reform coalition," this exhibit is interesting. Geo. N. Saunders was a leading spirit in the Baltimore Convention, and had a long interview with Greeley at Chappaqua the other day.

Horace Greeley was one of the strongest supporters of Grant till about eight months ago. Then he fell out with Grant about "patronage," and the Democrats began to tickle him with the hope of the Presidency. His paper, the Tribune, so long as it was disinterested, spoke the truth of Grant. But now, since it has an interest in slandering him, it goes to greater lengths of abuse than any other journal.

With an abundance of Pharisaical ejaculations the Democratic press continues to tell how some sums of money were made up for Gen. Grant before he became President, and how his acceptance thereof was a mark of immorality unequaled in history. But these highly moral journals do not state that large gifts were also made to Gen. McClellan, and that the Democracy thought none the worse of him for accepting them.

"Unpalatable as boiled crow," "bitter [illegible]," are expressions which [illegible] set forth the Democratic disgust with Greeley in this State. All the brethren are calling on the whole world to witness what a [illegible] sacrifice they are capable of making when they accept him.

The New York [illegible] which has been claimed for Greeley, still supports Grant.

Unhappy Tipton

The other day the Oregon Herald boasted that Senator Tipton of Nebraska, elected as a Republican, had come out for Greeley. An incident will show what the Republicans of Nebraska think of it. A fortnight since Tipton called a mass meeting at Fairmount, Fillmore county, in his State. The people assembled in great numbers and listened attentively to a long speech from Tipton. He recounted the usual stock of grievances against Grant and added others of his own invention. The people listened with such apparent respect that he thought he was carrying Nebraska for Greeley by storm. As soon as he had finished the perverse Nebraskans came to the front. They first gave three rousing cheers for Grant and Wilson. Next they resolved themselves into a regular meeting and framed and adopted with entire unanimity a series of resolutions, which, among other things, declare:

> Whereas, After patiently hearing the eloquence of the honorable Senator, we the Republicans of Fillmore county, Nebraska, are convinced beyond a doubt of the following facts: That the Hon. T. W. Tipton is dissatisfied with the present Administration, and opposed to the re-election of U. S. Grant, for the reasons stated as follows: That the President has not appreciated the wisdom and statesmanship of the Hon. T. W. Tipton; that the President has not used his appointing power with a view to the political interests of T. W. Tipton; that Senator Tipton cannot control a political influence with U. S. Grant and the Administration in power.
> Therefore, be it Resolved, That the Republicans of Fillmore gladly deliver him unto the Democratic, Liberal, any thing for office party, to be dealt with as they may deem proper.
> Resolved, That we indorse the Administration of President Grant, and heartily support Grant and Wilson for President and Vice President of the United States.

Greeley's Supporters.

"Tammany responds to the Baltimore nomination," was the announcement posted by the Tammany Ring on the City Hall, New York, (the building which has cost under Tammany administration about thirty millions of dollars) when the result at Baltimore was made known. Commenting on this, the New York Times says:

> There is one fact which is well worth the attention of Democrats and Republicans alike; it is that even now, in the full flush of his success at Baltimore, the Democratic candidate cannot get a dozen respectable men to appear in public with him. The very dregs of the "politicians" alone support Greeley. Where are the respectable Democrats of this city? All opposed to him. Ask them, and you will soon ascertain how the fact stands. The repugnance of intelligent Democrats will grow stronger and stronger every week. Tweed and his gang cling to Greeley, as drowning men catch at straws; but all the able and honest Democrats hold aloof from him. It is likely that many Republicans will voluntarily assist to revive the broken fortunes of the Tammany Ring?—and that alone is what the Greeley contest means, especially in this State.

The Terre Haute Journal, the leading Democratic paper in Dan Voorhees' district, still refuses to support Greeley, and, like the Chicago Times, spits upon his nomination.

The Greeley Hegira in Yamhill.

LAFAYETTE, July 22, 1872.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

SIR: I see in a late issue of the Herald that the Republicans in Yamhill county are going over to Greeley "by whole neighborhoods." This is news to us. After a thorough investigation, it has been found that the Herald's informant must have possessed a very vivid imagination, and that he drew upon said editor's credulity to an extent that is without a parallel. The "going over" as it exists in fact does not consist in neighborhoods, as stated, but is confined to one neighborhood, and the facts are these: Down in Chehalem there is one neighborhood that consists of three Chappaquacks and one Republican. Now said Republican, thinking to better his condition, has concluded to "go over" to a place in Tillamook that the said informant chooses to term "Greeley," and that is all there is of it. Yamhill will give a larger Republican majority in November than it did in June.

The Statesman furnishes an account of an outrage perpetrated on the Catholic Cemetery at Salem, for which the perpetrator should be severely punished if caught. The grave of a Mrs. Riley, who was buried about four weeks ago, is discovered to have been opened, the box containing the coffin uncovered and the coffin lid taken off, but the sacrilegious villains went no further in their ghoul-like work. Various surmises are rife as to the reason for leaving the remains after the grave was once opened. It is supposed the deed was done about ten days ago, and the general impression is that the guilty parties were in search of the body of a young man named Morris, who died about that time, but not being fully posted as to the spot where he was buried, they opened the wrong grave, and on discovering their mistake, repaired the damage as best they could under the circumstances. Others imagine the robbers did not expect to find the body in such a decomposed state, and on discovering its condition feared it would not answer their purpose and therefore left it. Of all the acts of which depraved man are guilty, this work of disturbing the sacred precincts of the dead is the most shocking to the humanity of our nature.

Mysterious Lake.

From the E[illegible] Independent

On the highest peak of the range of mountains east of Lamoille Valley is a lake which, although known to exist, has hardly been visited by white men. We have heard of men who have been there, but never has our thirsting vision been feasted upon the form of Caucasian who had the assurance to say that he had seen the mysterious lake whose waters kiss the clouds and draw from them the fountain which supplies the rivers and streams in the vale below. But still it is there. It is said by the most reliable Indian in this portion of Nevada that a large body of water exists behind the highest peak in the range mentioned. We can see from our window the fabled spot. Around its crystal waters the red man in days of yore was wont to gather his household gods and drink of its waters, which had such nutritious qualities that no other food was required. In a marsh at the eastern end of the lake were innumerable flocks of ducks, while beneath were fish of all sizes and kinds. Crawfish as large as the rim of a Greeley hat cling like mussels to the rocks and sunken timber. The shore of the lake is covered with a luxuriant growth of every type of vegetation known to the temperate zone. We announce our intention of drinking of the waters of that lake on the 4th of July next, or as soon thereafter as a party can be gotten up, who will take in wind enough before they start to last up the mountain and back.

During a recent trial at Rockport, Mich., the judge interrupted the testimony of a lady witness, remarking that it was not relevant. The lady raised her head, and with a look made all of injured innocence inquired, "Well sir, am I telling this story, or are you?" The judge wilted.

BLOODLESS BATTLES.

INFORMATION FOR THE PEOPLE PENDING THE GENEVA ARBITRATION—OUTLINE OF ANGLO-AMERICAN DIPLOMATIC HISTORY—[illegible] EXPLANATION REQUIRED.

[From the N. Y. Mail.

The general misinformation existing in regard to the facts of Anglo-American diplomacy from the Treaty of Paris, in 1783, to the late Washington Treaty, and the thoroughly partisan spirit in which, pending the controversy concerning the indirect claims, the subject has been discussed, constitute in themselves sufficient reason for the brief and strictly impartial review herewith submitted.

The diplomatic controversies of the United States with England involve the discussion of six topics. They are

1. The Maine Boundary question, from the Treaty of Paris, 1783, to the Ashburton Treaty, in 1842.
2. The causes which led to the war of 1812, from the declaration of the leaders in council to the Treaty of Ghent.
3. The police of the sea, with special reference to the suppression of the slave trade, from the treaty of Ghent to 1842.
4. The Oregon question, from the treaty of Ghent to 1846.
5. The San Juan question, from 1846 to the treaty at Washington.
6. The Alabama claims, first presented by Charles Francis Adams in 1862, and referred to the now pending Geneva arbitration at the late Washington treaty.

Other and minor questions have been discussed at different periods in the diplomatic history of the two countries, as, for instance, the Trent difficulty, settled by prompt and proper disavowal on the part of Mr. Seward, but in no others have the negotiations been so long protracted or involved acumen so consummate.

The Maine boundary controversy, settled by Mr. Webster, is naturally initial. At the Treaty of Paris, 1783, a kind of boundary between British America and the United States, from the Atlantic to the Rocky Mountains, was fixed upon as running from the northwest angle of Nova Scotia, that is, from the angle formed by a line drawn due north from the sources of the river St. Croix, to the Highlands; along the said highlands, dividing the rivers that empty into the St. Lawrence from those falling into the Atlantic Ocean, to the northwestern bend of the Connecticut river; thence, along the middle of that river, to the forty-fifth parallel of latitude, thence, following the said parallel to the Iroquois river, whence the boundary is traced through the great lakes. The controversy was developed by vagueness of definition as to the eastern part of the boundary, resulting no doubt from comparative vagueness of geographical information.

At the date of the Paris Treaty the country lying about the sources of the St. Croix was very imperfectly known. In 1792 pioneers from the State of Maine had imperfectly explored the district between the St. Lawrence and the Bay of Fundy, and Maine had set up a general claim to the effect that the highlands specified in the treaty were to be sought to the north of the sources of the St. John river—an allegation which gave the United States possession of nearly the whole tract, and was stoutly contested by Great Britain. At the Treaty of Ghent, 1814, the British Commissioners proposed to settle this boundary by dividing the disputed territory without regard to the letter of the Paris Treaty, the United States Commissioners declining on the ground that they were invested with no authority to cede territory; and thenceforth the tract was treated by the United States as unquestionably under American jurisdiction, by Great Britain as disputed. Soon after the Ghent Conference a joint commission was appointed with a view to the determination of the boundary according to one definition of the Paris treaty, with the understanding that in the event of controversy the ex-parte reports of the commissioners were to be referred to arbitration. Of the disputes that arose, the first, in regard to the true head of the St. Croix river, the British Commissioners contending for the western arm, the American for an eastern, was settled in favor of the American claim, while several others were adversely decided.

The important dispute, however, was that concerning the location of the highlands mentioned in the Treaty, the English contending for a range in latitude 46 deg., 40 min., which really did answer the description; the American for a range lying near latitude 48 deg. and in the vicinity of the St. Lawrence. Two lesser questions arose—one as to the northwestern head of the Connecticut river, a second as to the location of the forty-fifth parallel. The last was in 1818 referred to a commission of English and American astronomers, who agreed in settling the parallel about half a mile south of the ancient colonial boundary supposed to represent it, thus relegating a strip of territory upon which the United States had already erected a fort to British jurisdiction. Hence was developed that fiction of geocentric determination which in consequence of the oblate formation of the earth, carried the disputed parallel sufficiently north to cover the strip designated, but which was afterward abandoned in favor of another theory less objectionable than the geocentric was; and nine years later, in 1827, it was finally agreed to refer the three questions to the King of Holland, who was unable to make a definite decision, but traced what he conceived to be a just compromise boundary. To this, as it virtually divided the disputed tract between the disputants, Mr. Preble, the American Minister at Hague, objected in an energetic protest, upon the ground that the arbitrator had no authority to compromise the matter put in arbitration, and it was subsequently in 1829 repudiated by the United States.

Thus rested the controversy for thirteen years until settled by the Ashburton treaty, but, meanwhile, English surveyors were busy accumulating evidence to strengthen the case, most important contributions to which were made by Colonel Mudge and Mr. Featherstonhaugh, 1839 to 1841, in which it was found that the point designated by the American Commissioners as the northwest angle did lie within a range of highlands, but in the midst of marsh, that the nearest highlands lying somewhat to the west, did not divide the rivers falling into the Atlantic from those falling into the St. Lawrence; that the highlands claimed by the English as those specified in the treaty were not only struck by the due north continuation as therein mentioned but did actually divide the waters of the said rivers.

Nevertheless the practical conclusion that it was not worth while to assert the British rights at the cost of war appears so far to have governed Sir Robert Peel, in his instructions to Mr. Ashburton (1842), as to have led to a virtual concession of all the results developed by the official surveyors, Mudge and Featherstonhaugh. In fact, it being regarded as a capitulation at the time, Peel defended his action only on the ground that a few acres of territory were of no importance in comparison with the friendship of the United States. Mr. Webster was then Secretary of State, and appears to have wound Lord Ashburton (really an amateur diplomatist) around his finger and to have circumvented him with consummate skill—for Mr. Webster was, pending the negotiations, cognizant of the discovery in the Foreign Office at Paris of a letter from Franklin, one of the negotiators of the treaty of 1783, to the Count de Vergennes, in which mention was made of a map upon which he had marked the treaty boundary just settled with a strong red line. The map in question, or a map corresponding with that mentioned in Franklin's letter, had also been found by Jared Sparks in the Foreign Office at Paris, and on this map, marked with the strong red line specified by Franklin, was traced the boundary originally claimed by Great Britain. Mr. Webster was aware of the facts during his conference with Lord Ashburton, and their existence, without specific description, and under the denomination of embarrassing documents, was urged by Senator Rives as one of the reasons for a speedy ratification by the Senate.

One fallacy as to the causes that led to the war of 1812 needs to be corrected. England did not claim the right to impress American seamen, but to reclaim deserters from the British navy when found on board American vessels; and the Orders in Council assuming the latter as a right, which were undoubtedly untenable and aggressive, were repealed previous to the declaration of war by the United States, with apologies for the insolent conduct of officers who availed themselves of the order and disavowal of their most aggressive acts. Unfortunately, England was not so ready to restore the recaptured deserters or seamen impressed, as was Mr. Seward in the Mason and Slidell case, and hence, the declaration of war, clearly justified by the refusal to make restitution.

The strenuous refusal on the part of the United States to submit American vessels to the liability to examination, and to abate the sacredness of the protection of the stars and stripes to all property shaded by them, determined the subsequent negotiations relative to the suppression of the slave trade. After the treaty of Ghent the United States had subscribed to a covenant to join hands with England in its abolition and the British government, in order to establish what its plenipotentiaries termed an efficient police of the sea, tried to obtain some concession on the very question that led to the war of 1812. In 1824 a treaty to this effect was drawn up, but the United States refused to ratify it, on the ground that the geographical limits included in the treaty were too extensive. England protested against the alteration of the treaty, and thus the negotiations fell through, though in 1831 and 1833, similar treaties with France were negotiated and ratified. The question remained in this undetermined state till 1842, when the British Government gave way, though with a protest from Lord Palmerston that efficient police of the sea was thus rendered impossible, which would have proved true had England been the only policeman. Of course, the hoisting of the American flag really protected no American slavers, as Lord Palmerston pointed out in his communications to Mr. Stevenson, England not caring to take the responsibility of overhauling vessels that might turn out to be American, though, on the other hand, while refusing to concede the point, America undertook to police her own flag in this respect, and thus, after thirty years of discussion and one war, the American claim was conceded, and American shipping was emancipated from the English pretense of police, to extend which to the limits of an international [illegible] a strong and persistent effort had been made.

The Oregon question proved in the end nearly as perplexing as the Maine boundary had. In the Treaty of 1783 no mention was made of territory west of the Rocky Mountains, and it was not until the London Conference, subsequent to the Ghent Treaty, that the United States asserted an imperfect and qualified right. In 1818 a joint occupancy for ten years was agreed upon, which, in 1827, was renewed conditionally and terminable at the option of either contracting party. In 1827 the question had already been narrowed down to specific shape, in which the United States insisted upon the forty-ninth parallel, and England upon the forty-second. Still subsequently, the tract lying between the Columbia river, the sea and the forty-ninth parallel, was all that England insisted upon, the United States offering to concede the navigation of the river, but refusing to concede the territory, and later withdrawing the concession relative to the navigation of the stream. In 1845, when Polk was inaugurated, the Oregon question had taken the consistency of a demand to abrogate the joint jurisdiction, which was nullified by resolution of the Senate in April, 1846. The United States claim was, as will be seen by reference to the diplomatic annals of 1845, based upon three considerations: first, rights acquired by the Florida treaty; secondly, rights acquired by the cession of Louisiana; thirdly, rights acquired by discovery and colonization. An unfortunate point in regard to the inherited Spanish rights was constituted by the fact that the Florida treaty had never been ratified. The claim acquired by Louisiana was equally untenable. That based on the discoveries of Captain Gray, of Boston, who seems to have explored the Columbia river and valley in 1792 (the same year that Vancouver took formal possession of the coast in the name of the King of England, reviving the name of New Albion,) on the other hand, was strong enough to sustain a presumption of rights, while the exploration by Lewis and Clark in 1804, and the creation of Astoria in 1811, were dwelt upon as evidences of actual jurisdiction. Had the question been submitted to arbitration the English would undoubtedly have won, for the right of discovery was settled by the Drake expedition and by a quasi recognition of the English claims to New Albion for two hundred years by Spain.

But, having refused point blank in 1845, England in 1846 virtually conceded the whole question, only reserving Vancouver's Island, and thus American perseverance wrung the utmost out of an exceedingly shadowy case. Unfortunately, however, the existence of the several small islands lying in Rosario Straits, was ignored in the 1846 treaty, and though the J. C. Fremont map, the surveys for which were by authority of Congress, concedes San Juan Island to British jurisdiction, when the joint commission to fix the boundary officially was appointed, in 1856, Mr. Campbell, the American Commissioner, insisted upon carrying it along the Canal de Haro, thus relegating San Juan to American possession and sustaining a local policy initiated some years before by the Oregon authorities.

The merits of this question, now and in pursuance of the Washington treaty to be decided by the Emperor of Germany, may be considered hereafter.

A grand conception—that of a continent devoted to freedom, equality before the law, and Republican institutions—has governed the long diplomatic struggles briefly outlined and justified, even dignified, a perseverance morally right and legally untenable, but American citizens must not forget the fact that, while to the American mind the manifest destiny of Republican institutions in the New World justifies the struggles and the results, the Englishman from his standpoint regards the Maine boundary and Oregon treaties not only as concessions but as capitulations. It is unquestionably true that, in every serious controversy with the United States, England has ultimately given way, strong as have been the doubts as to the propriety of her doing so, and that the popular impression of the facts is unfounded. To her arrogance the United States government has opposed a stubborn persistence that has in the end beaten down all opposition.

Germany and the Jesuits.

A great deal of history, especially ecclesiastical history, was made in the last brief session of the North German Parliament, whose pre-eminent measure was the Anti-Jesuit bill. This bill abolishes the convents and other establishments of the Order on German soil, and extends the same veto to all other Orders and [illegible] associated with the Jesuits, leaving to the Government [illegible] to [illegible] which [illegible] they are [illegible] confers on the administrative authorities the right not merely to expel the Jesuits, as first proposed, but also to restrict the [illegible] to the [illegible] they may [illegible]. These [illegible] classes will, of course, have the same effect as expulsion, for no Jesuit will allow himself to be banished to the Danish frontier, to live under surveillance among a purely Protestant people, if he has the alternative of voluntary expatriation left him. But there is a flaw in the act which we do not know whether the Government will succeed in removing. Wishing to make sure of the law being sanctioned by the higher powers, Parliament made it dependent on the decision of the Federal Council whether the necessary Orders for the restraining of the individual Jesuits were to be issued by the Central Government or by the authorities of the various States. If the latter mode prevail it is just possible that the measure will not be carried out with equal stringency in every part of the Empire.

Greetings of Gratz and Greeley

Having heard [illegible] of a [illegible] interview recently between [illegible] Gratz Brown and Horace Greeley, the Cincinnati Commercial supposes [illegible] of the conversation may have been something like this:

Brown—Sublime [illegible] statesman, hail! I am Gratz Brown, the [illegible] third rate politician you wrote about two or three years ago. I am that red-headed Gratz Brown, whom you [illegible] a short time since.

Greeley—[illegible] the chivalrous and justly esteemed gentleman whose name I thank your Convention for associating with mine.

Twenty [illegible] two long Lines across the bloody chasm.

The compositor has his own way of punctuating and spelling, and this is the way he treated a familiar passage of Scripture: "The wicked flee, when no man pursueth but the righteous, is as bold as a lion."

"How do you do this [illegible]?" said a Frenchman to an English acquaintance. "Rather poorly, thank you," answered the other. "Nay, my dear sir," said the Frenchman, "don't thank me for your illness—I can't help it."

A [illegible] statue [illegible] has just been erected near the [illegible] Central [illegible].

Remarkable Cure of Mr. Abram Tully

San [illegible], August 2, 1871.

Dr. A. M. [illegible] & Co.: Some two years since I was taken down with Inflammatory Rheumatism, and was [illegible] two physicians, but [illegible]. I tried nearly every remedy I heard of, but nothing seemed to do me any good until [illegible] weeks [illegible] I was advised by Judge J. J. Brown to try your [illegible] WEED REMEDY. I purchased one bottle and was entirely cured. For six weeks before taking the [illegible] I was compelled to go upon crutches. I consider your remedy a great blessing to suffering humanity, and shall deem it my duty to [illegible] all Rheumatics [illegible] its great virtues. [illegible]

CITY.

A Splendid Gun.—We were shown yesterday at the store of Parker Bros a patent breech loading gun designed and manufactured at Meriden Conn As a piece of [illegible] workmanship it is unsurpassed. There is a dependency about the gun [illegible] ornamental gingerbread work which is found in many [illegible] pieces of [illegible] [illegible] it. The [illegible] is plain but [illegible] compact and [illegible] fitting The [illegible] are so neatly executed that the most [illegible] eye [illegible] to discover the seams The barrels are made from the finest [illegible] and are very highly polished and [illegible] By a [illegible] of sliding bolt which runs through the [illegible] where the breech [illegible] attached the two barrels can be unlocked and raised in [illegible] twinkling of an eye the barrels being [illegible] on a hinge near the forward part of the stock The two parts can be united in an instant and are held as tightly and firmly together as if the whole were one solid piece by the same self locking bolt. The charge is placed in a sort of metallic tube made of nickel closed at one end the size of the barrels and about two inches in length These tubes are slipped into the ends of the barrels and are made to articulate in a shoulder cut inside near the breech Before use [illegible] the load is placed in these tubes already to fire At the center of the closed end is a small round projection on which is placed a patent cap on each side of this projection two holes are drilled to allow the gases to escape at the time of the explosion The cap is exploded by a sharp steel point being driven against it when the hammer falls. These guns combine all the advantages [illegible] by other patents and also some points of excellence not possessed by any other The Parker guns seem to combine all the requirements of the sportsman—safety precision and rapidity of loading and discharging Their superiority will no doubt commend them to all sporting men

A Verdict at Last.—The arguments of counsel in the somewhat famous "Wrestling Joe" case were closed yesterday after which His Honor Judge Upton delivered a brief charge to the jury and the twelve men who had listened patiently to the mass of testimony and the disputations of the

for two long weeks almost retired to deliberate as to whether "Wrestling Joe" was the genuine Joseph Thomas and heir to the Caruthers estate or an impostor who had been brought on the stage by others to obtain the title to the valuable property The evidence covered a great length of time most of the witnesses being aged persons who were called upon to relate scenes and circumstances from seventy five years ago to the present, Oral testimony by numerous witnesses and volumes of depositions were presented on the trial, and the patience of Court and jury quite seriously taxed Able attorneys had argued eloquently on both sides and the jury doubtlessly felt their responsibility After the jury retired as a matter of course, much curiosity was felt by outsiders and much anxiety by the interested parties But the suspense was soon turned to certainty by the report of the officer that "the jury has agreed" When the verdict was opened it was found to be in favor of the plaintiffs Thus another step is made in this case, which is probably not yet settled, as we have heard that both sides had expressed an intention of carrying the case to the Supreme Court in the event of being beaten The result of the verdict is that the jury believe from the testimony that "Wrestling Joe" is the veritable Joseph Thomas and father of Finice Thomas, deceased—better known in Po[illegible] and as Finice Caruthers

Silverware Stolen.—Some enterprising thieves entered the basement of Mr J B Congle's residence corner of Taylor and Sixth streets on Tuesday night and stole a quantity of valuable silverware Among the articles had been mixed considerable plated ware The thieves were proficients in the art as they very carefully culled out the silver and laid the plated articles one side where they were all found the following morning They seemed to regard the idea of palming off any spurious articles on them as entirely "too thin" and concluded to take only the genuine It is to be hoped that all well regulated members of the light fingered fraternity will strive to emulate the example thus set and in the future adhere only to articles of intrinsic value and not waste time on base metal

Count Elinsky.—Andrew Elinsky a young Polish nobleman, who lectured in Salem last week, arrived in this city yesterday Mr Elinsky has recently effected his escape from the desolate and sterile regions of Siberia where he was exiled by the Russian Government for his liberal republican views He was also an active participant in the Polish revolution in 1863, He proposes to deliver a lecture at Philharmonic Hall on next Saturday evening His subject will be "The Persecution of Poland by the Russian Government" Mr Elinsky is represented to be a thorough scholar and a fluent lecturer He speaks in seven distinct languages

Race.—The pilot tugs Astoria and Varuna had a spirited race the other day out over the bar to see which could first reach the bark Almatia, that was lying out beyond some distance awaiting the arrival of a tow The Varuna rather distanced her rival but the Captain of the Almatia deemed it scarcely prudent to venture his vessel in the care of the Varuna on account of her size and want of power so he declined the tow and waited the arrival of the Astoria After crossing the bar the Varuna took the bark in tow and brought her to Oak Point where she was relieved by the Ben H Holladay

Old Land Mark.—A number of workmen were engaged yesterday in tearing down and removing the debris of the two old brick buildings which have weathered so many Webfoot storms on Front street, between Pine and Ash These buildings were erected many years ago Soon on their present site is to stand the large and magnificent brick to be constructed by Hon J S Smith

Discharged.—Joseph Bergman was arrested yesterday morning on a warrant issued from Justice Davis' Court on a charge of vending tainted and unsalable meat Yesterday the case was tried and the defendant discharged The costs of the court were taxed on the prosecuting witness who it appears was actuated by malicious motives in making the complaint

Additional Jurors.—The following persons have been summoned to complete the panel of the grand jury in place of the persons who were excused last week B J Whitehouse Wm Orme, A P Dennison Geo H Pushin H F Bloch A Ford A J Murray Jacob Mayer Geo Woodard William Braden Geo [illegible] Hubbard and Geo W Johnson

Forney's [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] arrived and will deliver his [illegible] lecture [illegible] Pratt's Hall tomorrow evening The [illegible] will be "Horace Greeley and [illegible]" Mr Forney [illegible] is not in favor of H G and is not likely to say any good of him

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

WEDNESDAY EVENING July 24 1872

Gold in New York to-day 114¼

Portland Legal Tender rates, 87 buying 88 selling

The bark Almatia arrived this morning from down the river in tow of the Ben Holladay She brought 9 43 pkgs of assorted freight She sailed on the 8th had a pleasant voyage made the distance from the Bay to the Bar in twelve and a half days.

The steamship Ajax arrived this morning from San Francisco with 750 tons of assorted cargo

The bark Rival sailed from San Francisco for this port on the 10th inst. with a full assorted cargo.

Although several vessels are now due at this port none were seen off the Bar as the Almatia passed over

The bark Garibaldi has finished discharging cargo She will probably load with lumber

The Jane A. Falkinburg having completed discharging cargo is lying at Flanders wharf awaiting freight for Honolulu

The Financial Chronicle (New York) of latest mail date, in an article on the condition of the money market, remarks that there is not much renewed demand abroad as yet for our securities The export of bonds to Europe has done much in the past year or two to redress the adverse balance of trade to which we have referred Those persons who are best likely to know predict that the probable demand in the foreign markets for American bonds has been exaggerated Such bonds have been sent in such vast indiscriminating profusion that some time must elapse before any considerable aggregates of new bonds can be marketed And moreover the expectation of the new French loan and other foreign securities are expected to be hostile to the anticipation of our American projectors The same paper observes further that the continued export of the precious metals does not create any stringency and adds That the export movement can be safely kept up if necessary and is likely to cause no inconvenience in the money market has been argued from two circumstances first the specie in bank augmenting in face of heavy exports and secondly the price of gold does not show any undue sensitiveness but is steady with a disposition for the moment to recede rather than to advance

The Boston Shipping List says that much Wool from the Pacific Coast is now arriving in that market which could not be sold except at a loss of about 10c ⅌ lb on first cost Importations of foreign Wool at Boston are double those of last year

Stocks of Oregon Lumber at San Francisco are much broken and prices tend upward Prices of rough are $18@$18 ⅌ M dressed $25@$27 by the cargo

Eagle Creek miners in Union county are in a prosperous condition The Mountain Sentinel says The Eagle Canal Company has their new ditch in operation with plenty of water at the head but owing to the loss by percolation and evaporation they are still unable to supply the entire camp with water The great excitement is at the old Hogem camp which has been nearly deserted for the past two years The miners appear to have worked up to the fact that the real source of wealth in this camp is contained in the immense veins of quartz extending through the entire Eagle Creek divide from Hog'em to Sparta and Gem City The old Humboldt ten stamp mill has been removed from Pocahontas to this place and will soon be ready for crushing The Carter and Davidson mill has passed into other hands and is now undergoing repairs

10 The franking privilege ought to be abolished and a way proposed for reduction of the rates of postage

11 Among the questions which press for attention is that which concerns the relations of capital and labor and the Republican party recognize the duty of shaping legislation so as to secure a full protection and amplest field for capital and for labor [illegible] the largest opportunities and a just share of the mutual profits of these two great servants of civilization

12. We hold that Congress and the President have only fulfilled an important duty in their measures for the suppression of violent and treasonable organizations in certain lately rebellious regions and for the protection of the ballot, and therefore they are entitled to the thanks of the Nation

13 We denounce the repudiation of public debts in any form or disguise as a national crime We witness with pride the reduction of the principal of that debt and of the rate of interest upon the balance, and confidently expect that our excellent national currency will be perfected by a speedy resumption of specie payment

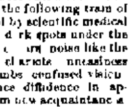
Dr Gibbon's Dispensary,



623 KEARNEY STREET NEAR COMMERCIAL San Francisco Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases [illegible] successfully treated

DR GIBBON [illegible] ng that he [illegible] Dispensary [illegible] San Francisco [illegible] requiring his services [illegible] has spared neither time nor money in seeking [illegible] his increased facilities for [illegible] suffering

Horrible Diseases

How many thousands of persons both male and female [illegible] suffering [illegible] misery [illegible] secret indulgence or from virus [illegible] happiness of marriage [illegible] of life In this horrid situation [illegible] Let parents [illegible] to those who are suffering with [illegible] this life destroying maladies see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send [illegible] DR GIBBON, a physician who has [illegible] disease his especial study forty years and who [illegible] most inveterate cases will not meet [illegible] It is important to those who [illegible] who are interested in the welfare [illegible] be careful of the many pretended doctors [illegible] publishing their skill in curing [illegible] a few days imposing upon the public [illegible] eminent physicians from Europe [illegible] Be therefore careful and make strict [illegible] you may fall into the hands of those charlatans

Seminal Weakness

Seminal [illegible] the consequence of self abuse, This [illegible] indulgence is practiced [illegible] youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent [illegible] the following train of [illegible] symptoms unless combatted by scientific medical [illegible] countenance, dark spots under the [illegible] ringing in the ears noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots uneasiness [illegible] weakness of the limbs confused vision [illegible] loss of confidence diffidence in approaching [illegible] a dislike to form new acquaintances [illegible] society loss of memory hectic flushes, [illegible] eruptions about the faces furred [illegible] cough consumption night sweats [illegible] frequent insanity If relief be not obtained [illegible] apply immediately either in person or by letter [illegible] cure effected by [illegible] new and scientific mode of treating this disease which never fails of effecting [illegible] radical cure Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily [illegible] that he was cured of this complaint by either of the [illegible] quacks

MARRIED MEN,

Or [illegible] who contemplate marriage who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies should not forget the [illegible] responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr Gibbon stating case symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity to any part of the country with full and plain directions By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells Fargo & Co. a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union

All communications strictly confidential

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who with bogus sworn to certificates dupe the unwary some of the self styled doctors whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places are tradesmen and became too lazy too work at their trades Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing and may save you many regrets for as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles certificates pretended patients letters, etc. Dr Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his offices of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure

Address DR J F GIBBON 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco Post Office Box 1 957

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1 957 ON THE LETTER Consultations FREE.
